Delivering Growth for the Future of Plymouth

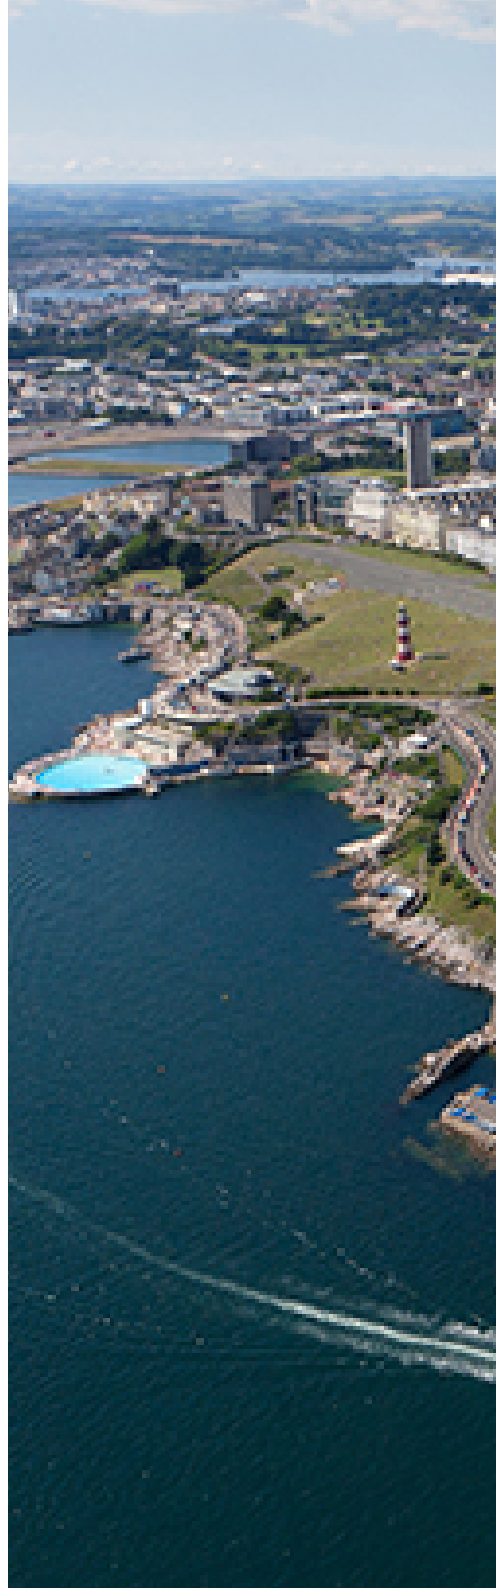

As a key enabler, the construction industry affects everyone, influencing productivity and well-being, creating the homes, hospitals, schools, workplaces and infrastructure essential for a good quality of life. While the influence of construction ranges well beyond its economic impact, its contribution to our economy is substantial.

We recognise that the construction sector will be crucial in delivering the government's ambitious build programme as well as developing 'new ways of working'. The industry has been at the forefront of delivering the Nightingale Hospitals across the country and will be an integral part of designing and building our new world post COVID-19.

Through accelerating Plymouth's significant capital programme, construction will underpin both economic recovery and growth for key sectors including defence, health, education, transport, infrastructure, commercial, housing and regeneration. Collectively employing an 8000+ strong workforce, Plymouth has a well-established, mature and capable construction community with a breadth of expertise which makes this a very adaptable and responsive local marketplace. Our Building Plymouth Expertise Directory demonstrates the strength of our local capability across design, engineering and build. We welcome the city's renewed focus on 'buy local' and believe that as a well-connected construction community we are in a very strong position to positively engage with clients and deliver projects across all sectors, whilst also maximising social value including skills and employment for the wider city economy.

Investment in Building Plymouth: Driving Local Skills and Employment

Building Plymouth is an award winning Council led partnership with the construction and built environment industry driving local skills and employment. We have a trusted and well-established infrastructure in place with public sector clients, industry, training providers, employment intermediaries and schools to enable strategic focus on managing the local demand and supply of skills.

Launched in 2015 in direct response to tackling the industry's big people challenges including key skills shortages and skills gaps, an ageing workforce, poor image and diversity, we are thankful for the co-investment from our Project Sponsors who jointly fund and steer this innovative public/ private sector partnership.

Building Plymouth has enabled Plymouth City Council to become an accredited CITB National Skills Academy for Construction where the local authority has adopted the Client Based Approach through both Planning and Procurement to deliver site specific employment and skills interventions including targets for apprenticeships, job creation, work placements and up-skilling opportunities.

With growing local spend invested in delivery of local construction projects, we know that construction supports significant and diverse sustainable employment, creates well-paid quality jobs and ongoing training and apprenticeships, with progressive career opportunities. This makes construction an easily accessible sector for many people as it provides far more opportunity for social mobility than other industries. Construction should therefore be considered a key sector to lift local people out of unemployment to aid recovery with much opportunity to address ongoing local skills gaps and shortages, strengthening the local supply chain, along with driving future skills in green jobs and modern methods of construction.

Working together to maximise Social Value through Building Plymouth

The Building Plymouth sponsors strive to ensure all projects they are involved with provide social, economic and environmental benefit. This past year has seen an amazing effort from the local construction community to step up and make a difference.

Bottom left: Celebrating Plymouth's top Construction Apprentices at the Annual Apprenticeship Fair 2020. Over 1,000 attendees all interested in a future career in construction and manufacturing in the City.

Bottom right: Delivering The Road to Mayflower for Plymouth's Mayflower400 Commemorations including building The Mayflower Forest – raising over £120k in-kind support from the local construction industry.

"Being part of Building Plymouth has been amazing. There is a real 'can do' attitude and a genuine focus on making a difference in our community" Kate Mills, The Building Forum Devon & Cornwall
