

All schools aspire to safeguard their students. They take seriously how students treat themselves and each other both online and offline. Sharon Girling OBE visits schools to present and offer advice to the students, staff and parents on how the online activities of young people not only affects them today but will impact their future.

Presentation outline

Young people are using the internet daily. They change where they go online and the games they play and use regularly. It is therefore vitally important that staff and parents are equipped with the knowledge and understanding they need to keep children safe across these wide range of online environments and situations. In some instances, a young person's online presence will define their offline lives. The choices about the information they share and how they behave online has consequences for their safety, their education, their wellbeing and other life experiences. The information provided during the parents' evening will enable parents to continue the learning at home.
